CUSTOMER TESTIMONIALS

“

UNCO spent time to make sure I was comfortable with the reroute tools before the reroute started. They were able to answer questions throughout the reroute process to make sure we got the desired outcome we were seeking. I enjoyed the ease of changing the route with the simple click of a mouse, eliminating the data entry process all together. After the reroute was done, it was easy to get buy in from the route department because the platform allows the team to physically see the new routes on the screen. The new reroute tools allowed us to have fewer people physically involved in the reroute process, which was a better use of our resources and helped us to better serve the customer.

The reroute process has gotten a bad reputation throughout the years – and for good reason. They normally include pain staking attention to detail, countless ride-alongs, and more hours than most businesses would like to spend; however, it's a necessary task as the delivery system is a vital part of many dealerships. Our dealership was facing a reroute after 5 years of growth. I met with Kelly and Kendra to go through the process and set the timetable for each checkpoint during the process. They laid out the expectations we needed to set in place and how to accomplish the goal of making our routes shorter in drive time and work hours while also delivering more product. Using the reroute feature on WaterWizzard made this process as easy as it has ever been. I was able to build the routes based off location, delivery frequency and the average product delivered. The reroute feature, and even more so the support from Unco staff, turned the process into a positive learning experience for myself and my entire team on the importance of keeping balanced routes to keep our clients happy and give them service they can depend on. Once the reroute was complete, our team was able to use the reports to be proactive and reach out to clients that may have seen a larger than normal time between service – this alone was able to help us receive over 15 referrals in the next 3 months. I cannot give enough praise to Unco for WaterWizzard's reroute feature for turning a normally tedious task into one that has helped improve our business, helped strengthen our team and shown the clients we are always looking to improve to better serve them.

It is apparent from the beginning that UNCO has a clear path to help guide the dealer through rerouting the delivery routes. All along the way, I could tell how much easier and faster the tasks are accomplished using the new computer tools rather than attempting to pin and shift tacks on a physical map. Rerouting is still a large and challenging process, but the powerful UNCO tools make it better and faster. Furthermore, the staff was proficient and helpful in setting and achieving goals and deadlines in the process.
